OLEY, PENNSYLVANIA

FOREWORD

With Commencement, the door opens wide to the future—a future ever alive with many challenging experiences. In keeping with this thought, we, the Class of 1967, selected as our motto, "TODAY DECIDES TOMORROW." What one does in school as he is climbing the steps toward adulthood will, in a large measure, shape his life and his career. As students of the Oley Valley High School, we have had the opportunity to choose those courses which we felt would give us the knowledge and skills to use in seeking a higher goal in life. Our selections—if they were wise—should bring us nearer one common destiny, success.

The youth on our cover, symbolizing the members of the Senior Class, is shown poised in an open doorway, looking at the continuously widening horizon of the future—a time of revelation and testing. Behind him lie twelve years of public education—steps which, like him, each of us has had to climb, one by one, on the way to various tomorrows. Six years of elementary school, foundation steps for intellectual and physical development; two fleeting years of junior high, a time of searching for meanings and answers; and four years of senior high where, through many days of specialization in a curriculum of our own choosing, we prepared for future careers—all this we feel will aid us in attaining some modicum of achievement throughout our adult lives. A successful today indeed does decide a successful tomorrow.

DEDICATION

We, the sixty-first class to graduate from the Oley Valley High School, are indeed proud to dedicate our yearbook to Mr. Llewellyn M. Heffley. For thirty-five years, from 1931 until 1966, Mr. Heffley gave willingly his knowledge and time toward educating countless students of our area in the ever-increasingly important study of science.

Perhaps many might regard such a long and steady devotion to education here at Oley as out-of-date—belonging to the “Mr. Chips’ era,” but Mr. Heffley’s service and untiring efforts on behalf of his profession in this community speak well indeed of him as a person, the kind that one is all-too rarely fortunate enough to encounter in any school system.

Although now retired, Mr. Heffley will undoubtedly be long-remembered by former students for the contributions he made in the constantly changing world of education at Oley Valley High.

Referring to the character and worth of such an individual, King George VI of Great Britain remarked: “The highest of distinctions is service to others.”

In the 1966 Conference held at Conrad Weiser, Oley placed fourth out of eleven teams entered.

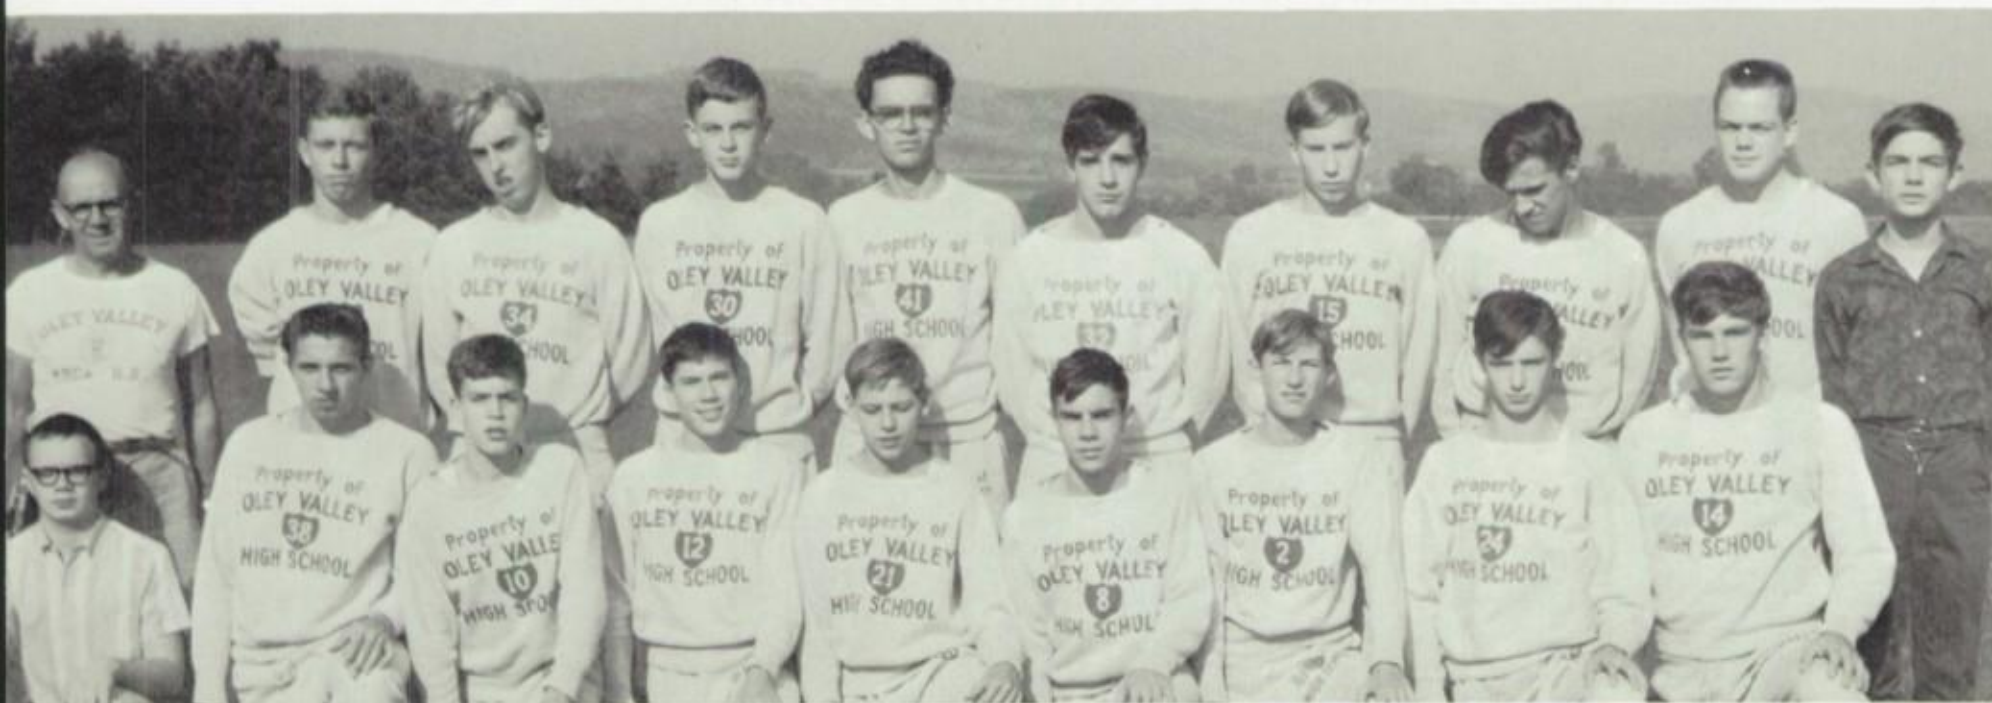

Ralph Fick heads down the tricky course.

Raymond Himmelreich, one of our outstanding harriers, tries for another record run.

Cross-Country is a grueling, physically-demanding sport. It is one where the individual is called upon to make use of only his own stamina and ability. Hard though it is, when you take the lead and get the long stride heading to the finish line, you know it has been worth the price.

A TEAM SPORT

What really is a TEAM? Eleven players—each playing by his own rules, or eleven players—working together? A true athlete is not one who gives a mere 100% of his time and talents; he gives 110%! Success is great, but it is even greater when you know you have truly earned it.

ACTIVITIES

Hmm, what smells so good? Why it's a cake being baked by two culinary chefs, Robert Anderson and Larry Kegerise! Samples, gentlemen?

Mrs. Tibbetts shows Jeffrey Messner the correct way to prepare foods in both a double boiler and an electric frying pan. Only one problem: where's the food?

SENIOR BOYS ENROLL IN HOME ECONOMICS

Something new has been added! This year for the first time Senior boys were given the chance to enroll in a home economics course designed especially for them. Twenty took advantage of this opportunity to study not only the preparation of foods and menu planning, but also the selection and proper care of clothing under the direction of Mrs. Tibbetts.

Unfortunately someone's got to do K.P.! Randy Blankenbiller, Donald Himmelreich, Leo Peters, and John Banis are the lucky ones this time!

Grover Snyder and Eugene Hoffman debate the exact amount of ingredients to use while Robert Bortz looks on and continues to mix his batter. Ah, Macbeth's witches never had it this good!

"THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER"

As Juniors, on March 18 and 19, 1965, our class presented its production of The Man Who Came to Dinner, written by Moss Hart and George Kauffman. Mr. Weaver of the Foreign Languages Department directed this three-act comedy.

Sheridan Whiteside (played by Edwin Tallman), a famous radio personality, having dined at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley (Stanley Cieplinski and Marilyn DeHart), slips on their door-step, "breaking" his hip. A nerve-racking six-week confinement follows. Mr. Whiteside monopolizes the living room, invites convicts (Dawn Ressler and Lynda Sweitzer) to meals, and makes trans-Atlantic telephone calls amounting to $784! The arrival of strange gifts from his friends further destroys domestic tranquility: a penguin, an octopus, and ten thousand cockroaches.

When Maggie Cutler (Joy Strunk), his secretary, falls in love with reporter Bert Jefferson (James Wolford), Whiteside enlists the charms of glamorous actress Lorraine Sheldon (Lynn Schweikart) to break up the romance. Sensing the danger, Maggie gets help from Hollywood actor Beverly Carlton (Dennis Frick). He impersonates the voice of Lord Bottomley, in whom the actress is romantically interested, and asks her by phone to return to England to marry him.

Almost it works, but Whiteside, becoming suspicious, finds no calls have come through from London. In revenge, Lorraine suggests that she and Bert go to Lake Placid for three weeks. There they will be able to rewrite his play, in which she pretends great interest.

Pressured by Maggie, Whiteside relents and frantically tries to get rid of Lorraine. The unexpected arrival of a coffin furnishes an idea. Tricking the actress into stepping into the case, he shuts and locks the lid, then has the case carried to the airport for shipment elsewhere. Thereupon he, too, departs—but a second later a crash is heard. Yes, he has again slipped and fallen on the door-step!

Maggie (Joy Strunk) sizzles as Bert (James Wolford) and Lorraine (Lynn Schweikart) give their attention to Mr. Whiteside (Edwin Tallman).

John, the butler (Luther Yenser), Dr. Bradley (Curtis Angstadt), and Miss Preen, the nurse (Sandra Buzzanca), wait on their irascible patient.

SENIORS SCORE HIT WITH

Hiding in a secret nest of rooms in Amsterdam, Holland, in 1942, teen-aged Anne Frank began to write a diary the world can never forget. Through the two harrowing years that followed, she braved the Nazi terror, even finding her first love shortly before her brief life was over. Of course, this young girl never intended her secret account of those years to be published. But some time after Anne had been taken away to die in a concentration camp simply because of the fact she was Jewish, its scattered pages were found on the floor of the "secret annexe" in which she and seven other persons had sought sanctuary from man's inhumanity to man. First published in 1947, it was later dramatized by Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett and awarded the coveted Pulitzer Prize in 1956.

On Friday and Saturday evening, November 4 and 5, 1966, the Senior Class, directed by Mr. Matthews, presented this powerful and tragic—yet tender—play, feeling its message of faith and hope in the face of persecution and certain death would prove an inspiration to those who saw it.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION DEMONSTRATION— MARCH 11, 1966

"Wait for me!" yells Dennis Dierolf to Michael Carl, John Rissmiller, and Larry Blankenbiller.

Got trouble, Kenny?

MAGAZINE CAMPAIGN TOPS GOAL

Again, as has been the custom each fall for many years, the students of Oley Valley High participated in a magazine sales campaign in order to raise funds for the school. The drive lasted ten days, at the end of which a total of $5704.66 worth of subscriptions had been sold. (Our goal was $5600.) Congratulations go to the thirty-four per cent of the student body who helped in the project—especially Eleanor Eyrich, highest in total sales, and Neal Eckert, second highest. In addition, Homerooms 16, 204, and 19 deserve recognition for being the three outstanding ones in sales collections.

BELOW: The hard-working Homeroom Captains included:

With the completion of the 1967 OLEAN, the last step in our high school life before graduation has been reached. That which happens to each of us now will depend largely upon personal effort. The time for deciding what we will make of our lives and how we will affect the world outside Oley Valley High has at last come.

Speaking on behalf of the staff, I hope that as each reader moves on toward whatever goal is his aim, this volume will serve as a reminder of the knowledge gained, of the friends made, and of the activities held at OVHS during 1967.

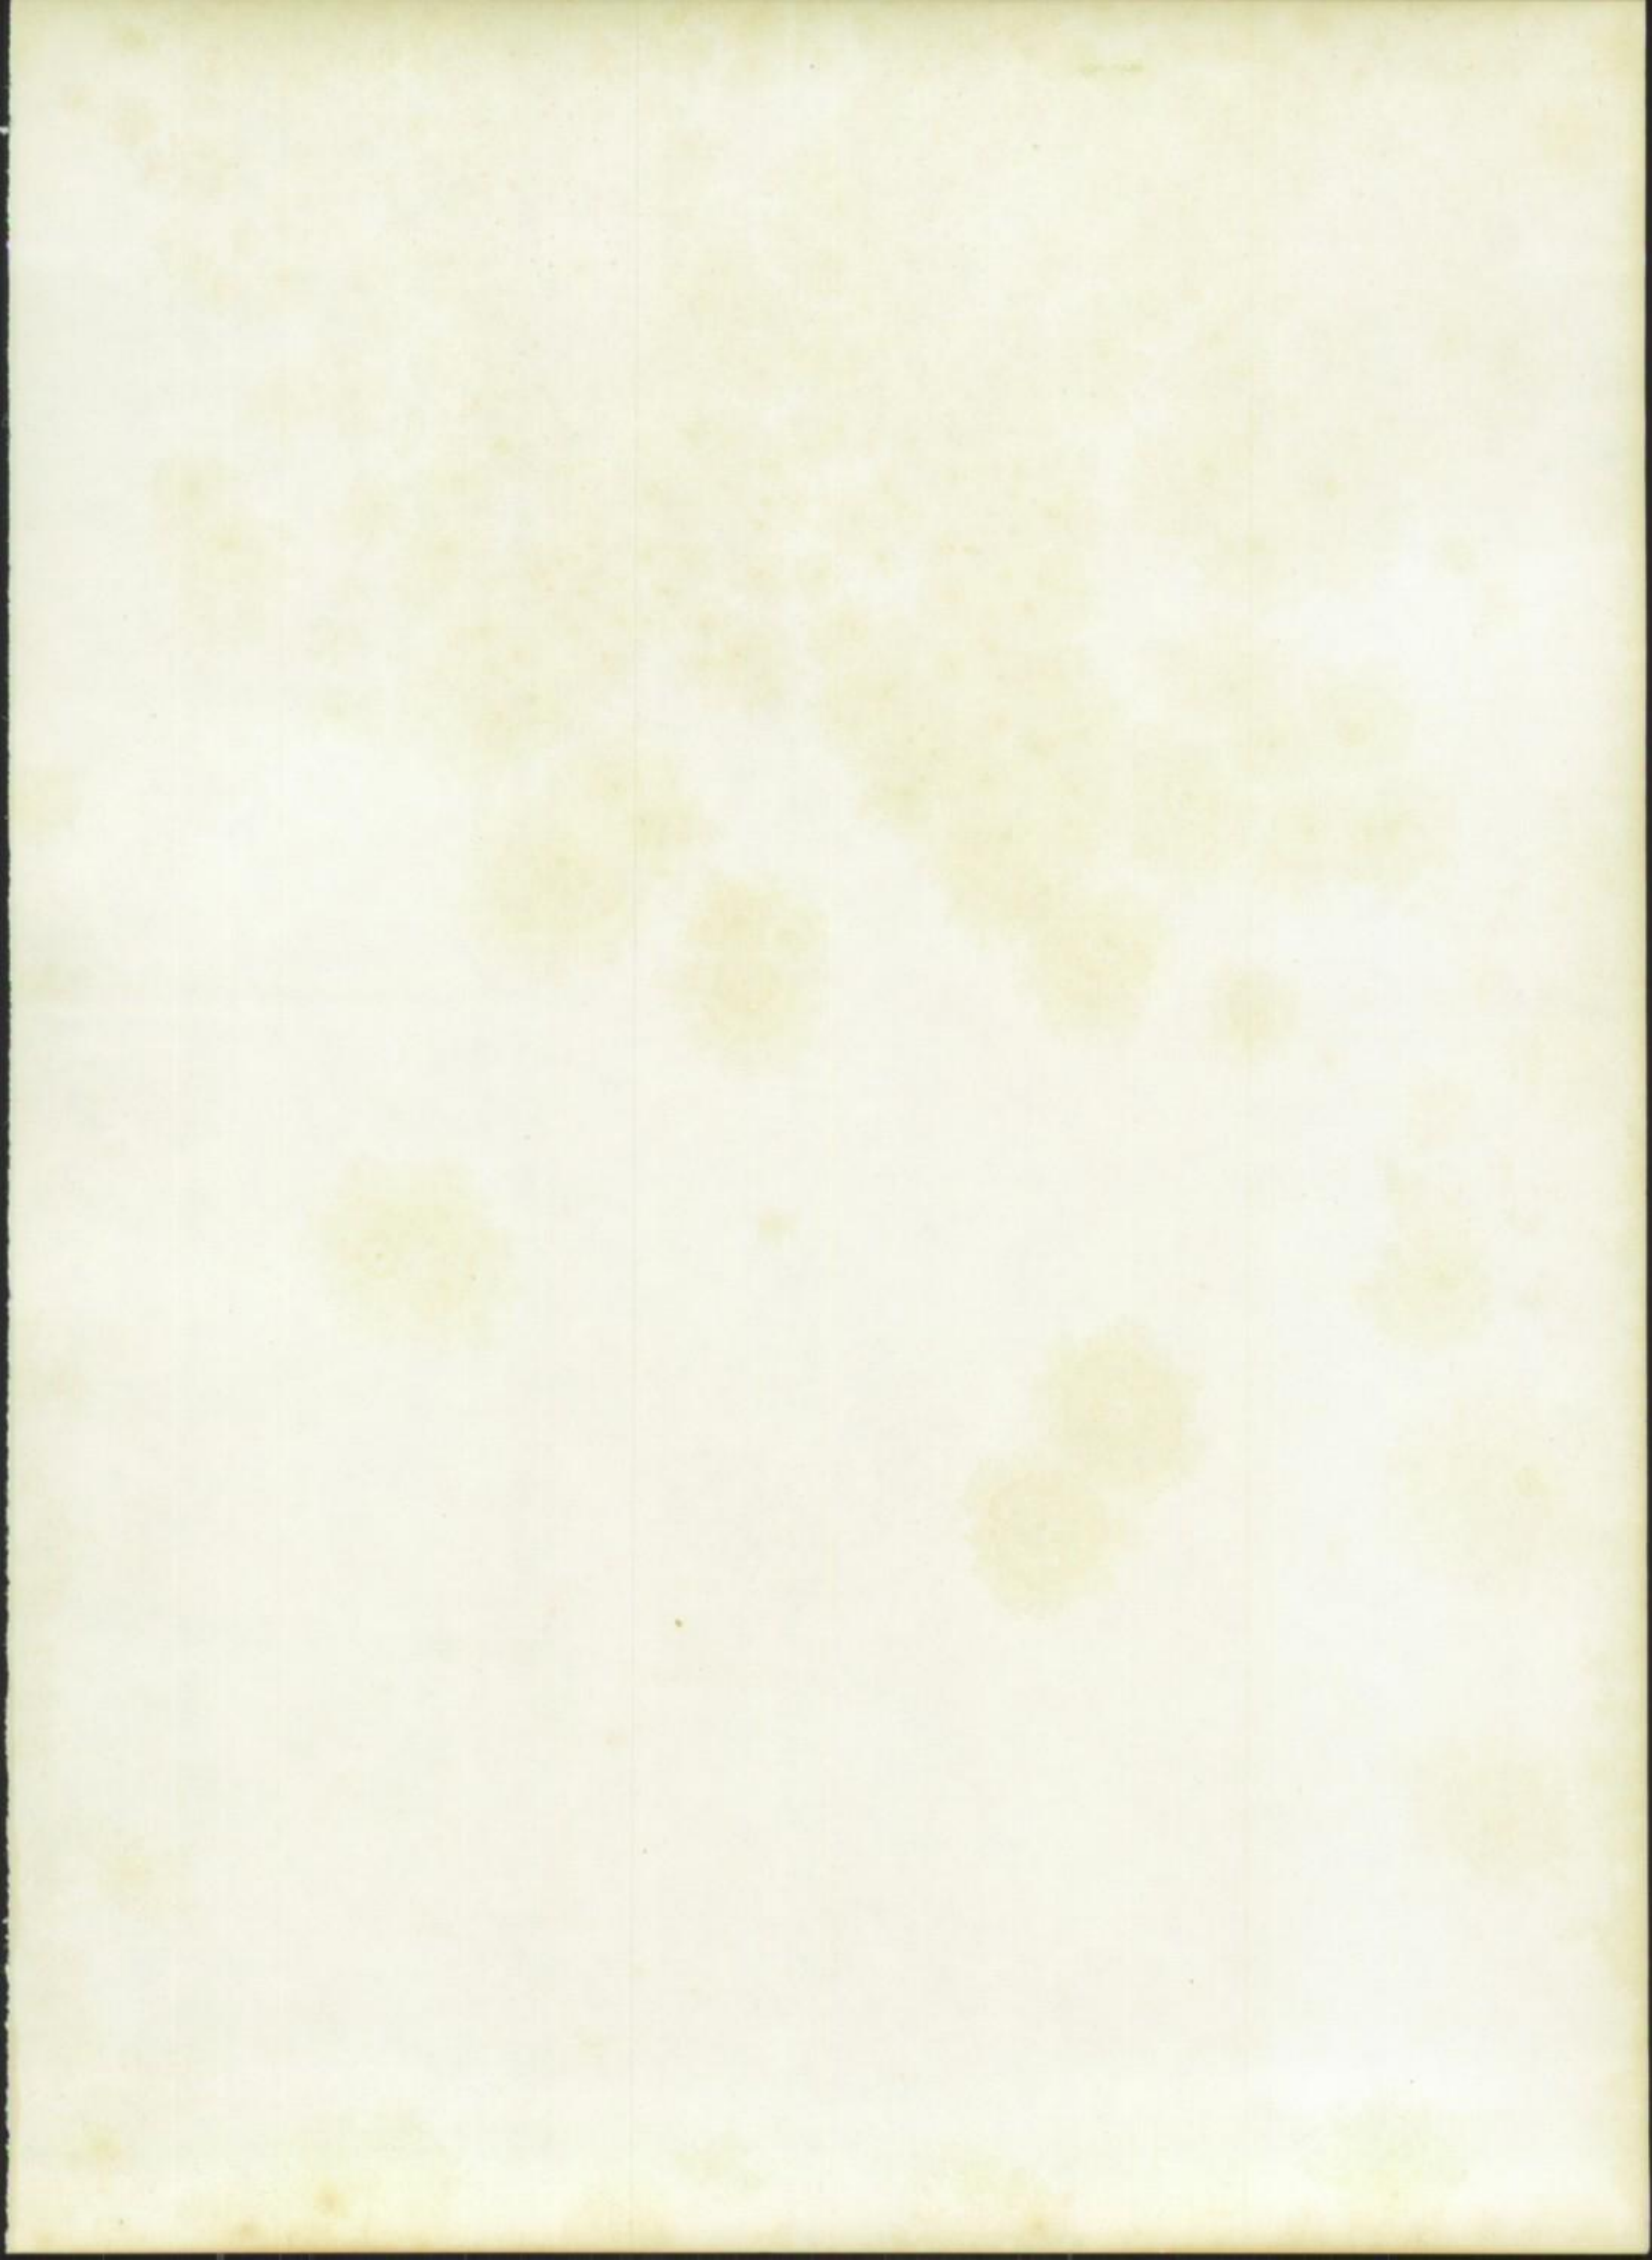

Shakespeare phrased it aptly when he wrote:

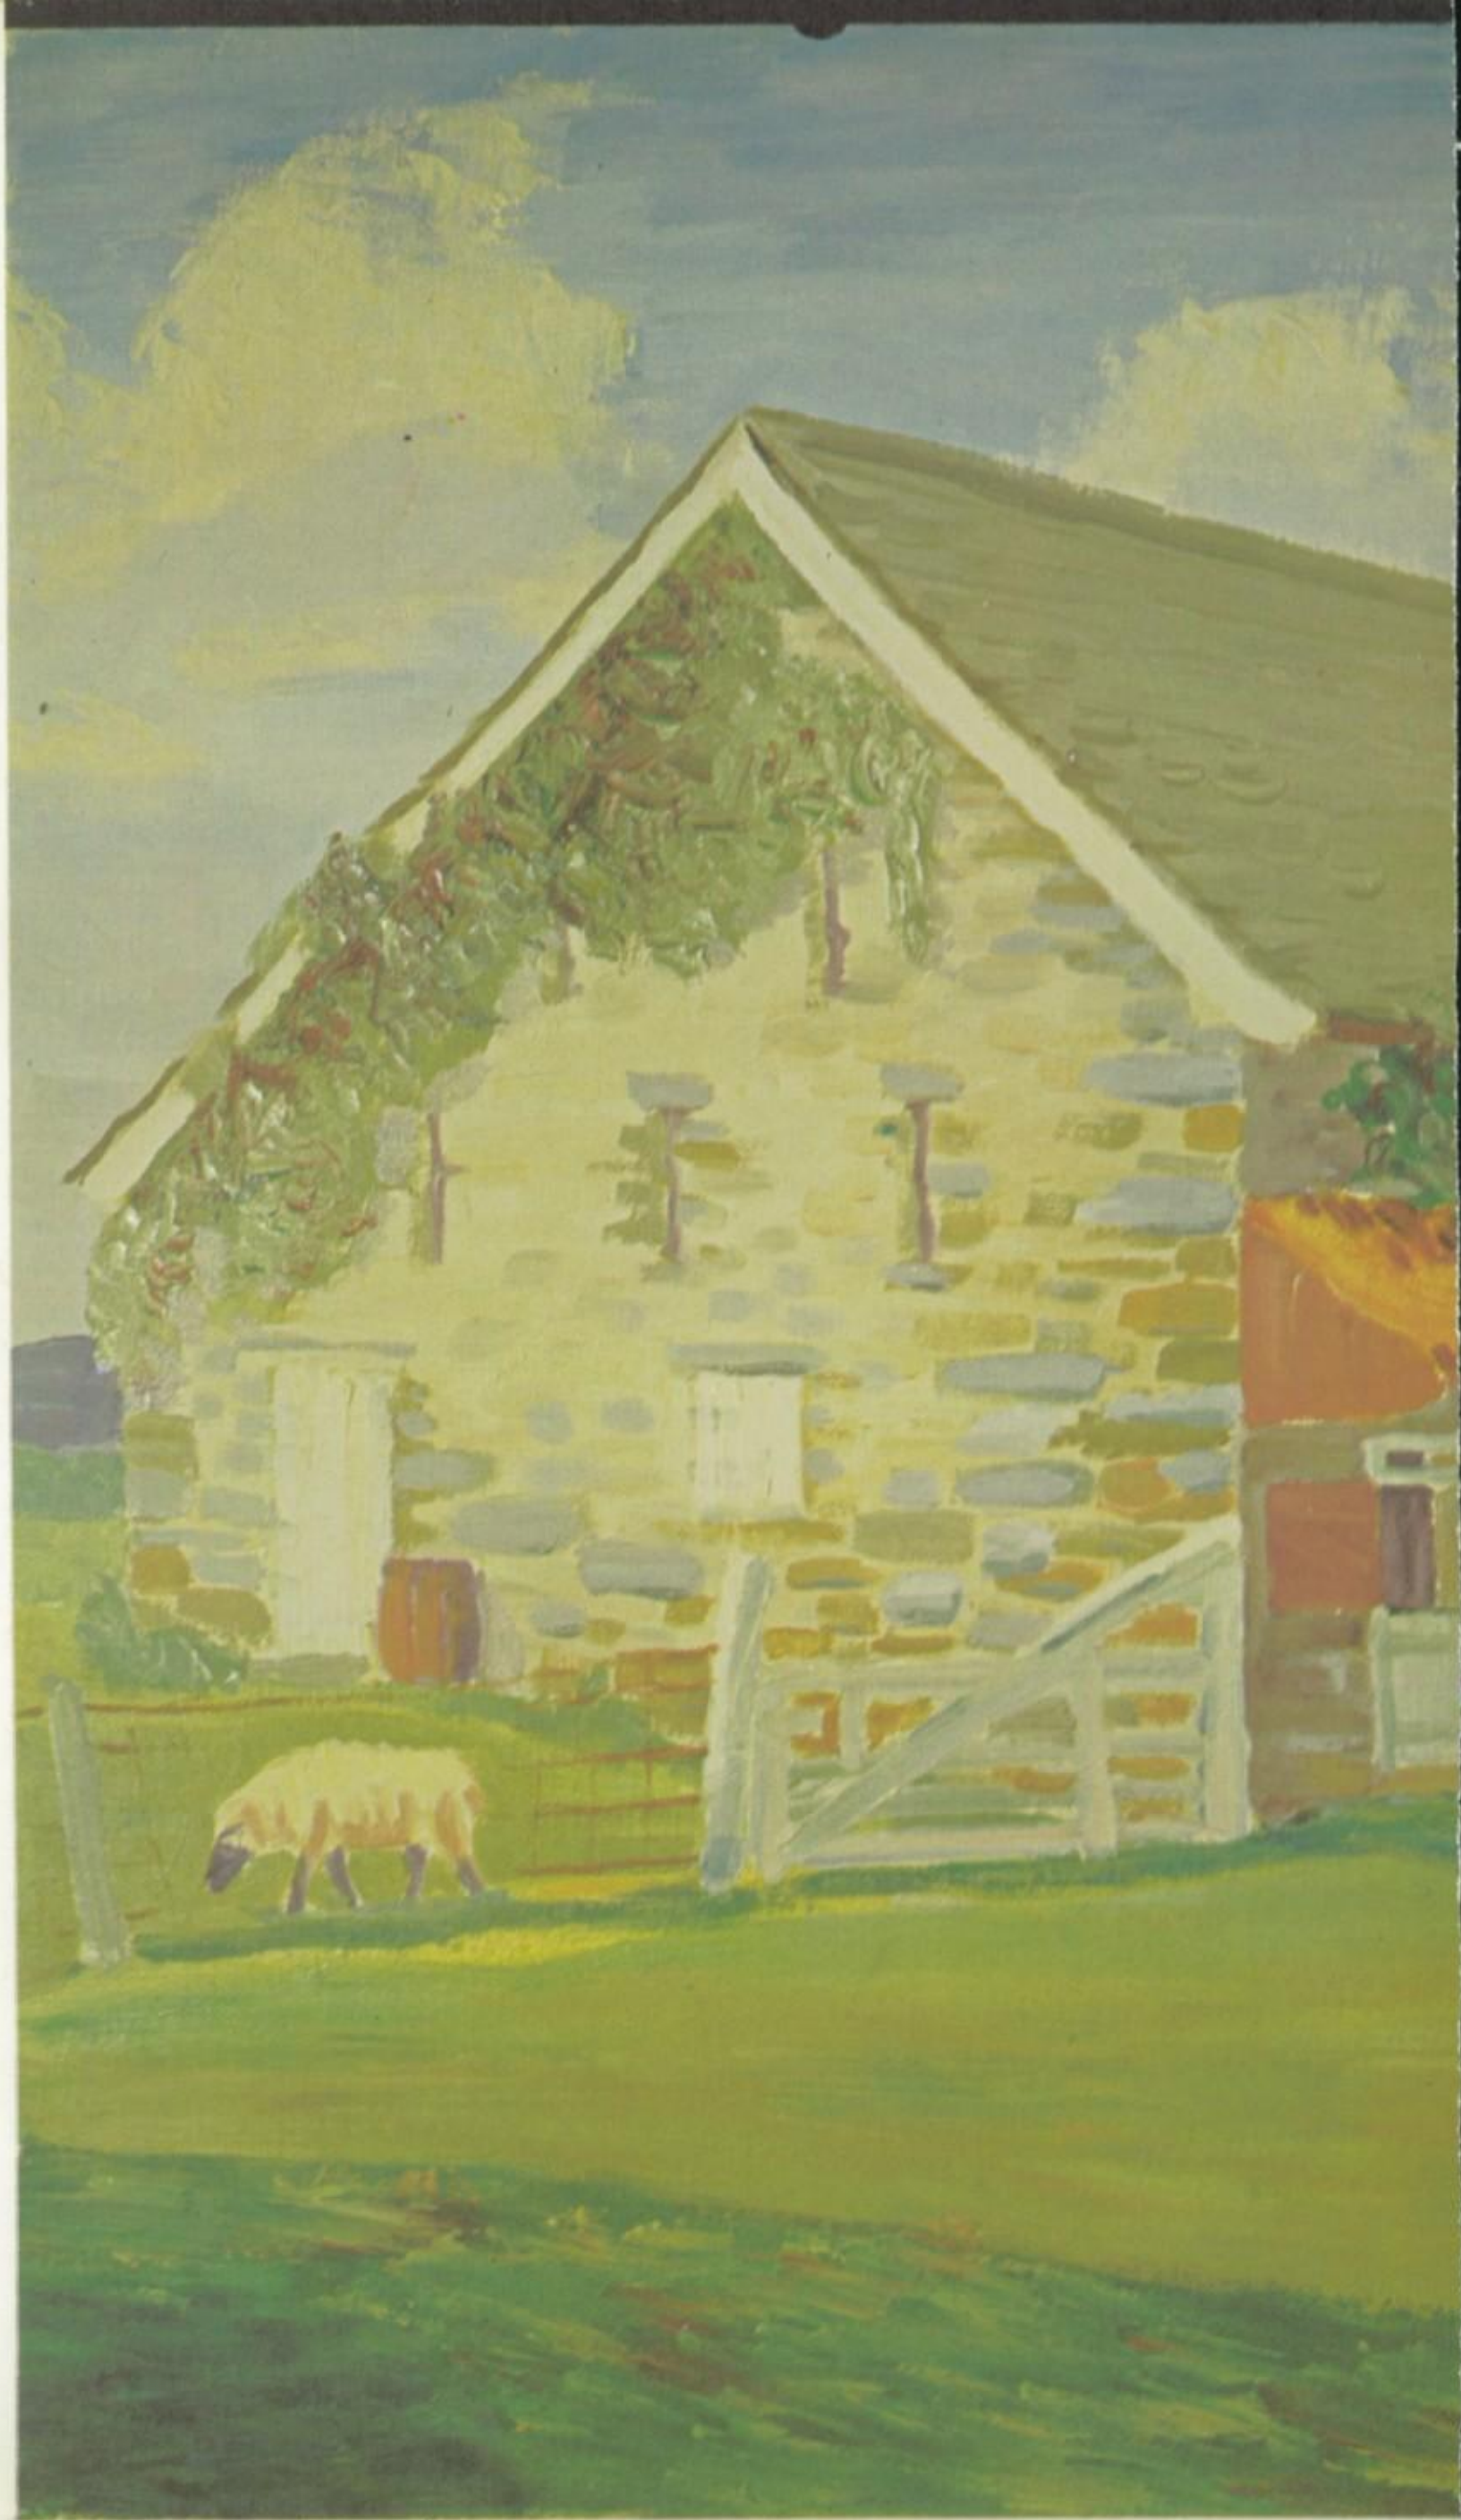

" . . . Now, with my happy class,
The race is won, and all our dreams, long sought,
Are ours to keep. As we celebrate
Our glorious victory, we would here and now
Thank every teacher, every friend, who helped,
By patient watch, to hold our steady pace,
And guide our rambling strides toward the design
We longed for most. . . .
Classmates, may we live
That words to deeds their noblest spur may give.
We go, our school work done. The world invites us."

Editor-in-Chief
